TO PLAY BALL

A STOCK COMPANY WAS ORGANIZED LAST NIGHT.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING HELD.

Officers Elected. Subscribe Now.

Come in on the Ground Floor.

Roanoke will have a base ball club this season. It was fully decided at the meeting held at the Opera House last night, and when the house who composed the meeting say a thing, they know what they are talking about. And they said that Roanoke would have a base ball club.

The meeting last night was large and enthusiastic. Mr. H. N. Claxton was unanimously chosen chairman, and Mr. R. S. Roberts was made secretary and treasurer. It was a meeting of business men and they got down to business without much ado.

The committee consisted of Messrs. H. N. Claxton, president; Mr. J. R. Hanthorn, vice-president and R. S. Roberts, secretary and treasurer. It was next formed and the following directors were appointed: Messrs. A. S. Asberry, C. O. Leary, S. S. Brooke, Walter Radwell and J. R. Hanthorn.

The next move was to form a stock company. It was capitalized at a minimum of $1,500 and a maximum of $5,000. The maximum was the price of the shares was placed at $5 each. One half of this to be cash and the remainder to be paid in installments of 10 percent monthly. Already a large amount has been subscribed. It is thought by the promoters that there will not be the slightest difficulty in raising a sufficient amount to assure the success of the club.

A soliciting committee was appointed composed of the following gentlemen: Messrs. G. O. Houston, James A. McConnell, M. T. C. Jordan, W. C. Beck, G. G. Anderson and H. N. Claxton.

It is proposed to have the club thoroughly organized within a week. The gentlemen interested have examined the field carefully and say that there is better material for a club now in the city than ever before.

ROANOKE.

The City Building Up With a Rapidly Rarely Equalled.

In soil, climate, timber and mineral, wealth, rivers and above all in beauty, Roanoke is the most beautiful city in the South and hundreds flock to the springs here to breathe the pure mountain air and receive the benefits of our medicinal waters.

The soil of this section is of the richest, and produces all the cereals, yielding abundant harvest. The mineral deposits are beyond estimation. The timber supply is almost unlimited; large forests, including nearly every variety of wood used, covering the mountain sides.

With all these natural advantages, there are many reasons to doubt that the South will soon be the greatest portion of our State. We have everything to attract people, and they are flocking to this El Dorado of "American adventure" by thousands.

Roanoke, as the hub of this section, is getting her share of the improvements and probably nowhere in the South is more manufacturing enterprise manifest than here.

We have such a beautiful site upon which to build a large city. In addition to the central business portion of our town, numerous properties have been laid off and we now have enough land laid off to build a large city.

Among the many additions recently laid off is that of the West End. This property is so well known to every Roanoke man that it is unnecessary to give a description of it. Recently, however, many new streets have been laid off and men are constantly at work grading. Water pipes are being laid all over that section and the gas mains are also being extended.

The street car line runs through the property and is very convenient for persons residing there, giving the pleasures of a suburban residence and at the same time the conveniences of city life.

Messrs. James S. Simmons & Co., are agents for the company and have a number of lots for sale there. The property is selling rapidly and one should call early to secure a good bargain.

He Was a Supe.

"You have no objection to accepting a tract, have you, my young friend?" said the kind old gentleman to the boy on the corner.

"No," answered the youth, accepting the proffered gift, "but I can tell you right now it ain't a-going to do any good. I'm a supe at the opera house."

The Friendship Fair was well attended last night. There was a mock marriage ceremony between Dan McGinty and Miss Murphy, performed by the Rev. Mr. Jennings. Miss Annie Wilson won the cake walk.

Postmasters Appointed.

The following fourth-class postmasters were appointed today in Virginia: J. T. Palmer, Daysville, Louisa county; R. K. Gillespie, Doran, Tazewell county; J. E. Fennas, Tanner's Creek, Norfolk county.

A Parkersburg (W. Va.) dispatch says: Ex-Senator Camden, ex-Senator Davis and Stephen B. Elkins have conveyed to the West Virginia and Pittsburgh railroad $6,500 acres in Webster county, rich in timber and coal for $346,135, which were purchased a short time ago for $71,400. An iron mining company with a capital stock of $400,000 has just purchased 9,300 acres for $150,000 in Greenbrier county, which is richly underlaid with minerals. Two thousand acres near this city, rich in timber, were sold Tuesday.

The best pianos and organs on the market, and sold at most reasonable prices and terms, are handled by the Hobbie Music Company, Lynchburg. Those who are thinking of purchasing a piano or organ stand in their own light by not writing this well established house before purchasing. You'll save money.

THE TRENCHER AIR-BREAKS.

Mr. Chalkley, the engineer on the runaway train on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad having on board the Pearl of Pekin company, which was a disaster Monday morning, says that when about two and a half miles from Staunton the air was working well in the pipes. When applying it for the stop at Staunton, about one mile west of the station, he discovered the air was not working well except on the engine, then he blew for brakes, which was responded to by the baggage-master.

MORE COMMENTS.

The Views of Other Citizens in Relation to the Exposition.

Encouraging remarks are being made all over the city in relation to the exposition, which it is proposed to be held in June, 1892, and any effort made now to hold such an one will be heartily supported by every business man in Roanoke. Several citizens were interviewed yesterday, with the following result:

Rayton Perry: "If the requisite amount of funds can be subscribed to make the effort a success, I am in favor of it. There is no question but what it will be a big thing for the city. No one can study the remarkable resources which the South enjoys, with out coming to the conclusion that, in natural advantages, this section stands far ahead of any other in the country, and we are entering upon a period of prosperity greater than we have ever enjoyed before, therefore the conditions for holding an exposition are favorable, and I think it should be done."

W. P. Camp: "The idea is a grand one. Our wealth in wood and iron is beyond estimate, our timber is of almost unlimited supply, and we have soil suited for every branch of agriculture. This combination of advantages which the Southwest enjoys is not exceeded by any country, and I think we should have an exposition and show off our great wealth to its best advantage and the progress that has been made in the last eight years. I think the people of Roanoke, the Queen city of Virginia, will not let this opportunity of helping the town along slip through their fingers. For my part I am willing to assist in any way and will contribute of my means toward it."

C. W. Beckner, manager of the opera house. If the people of the city will only turn their attention to the things that are working and contributing like they are able, it can be made by far the biggest thing Virginia has ever had, and as for Richmond, it will knock their exhibition silly. Virginia in the course of time will be the greatest State in the Union and Roanoke its most prosperous city. We are just now on the very threshold of our boom and before long outsiders will open their eyes in wonder. In this city, as in Parkersburg, Taylor of New York, said: "We have young men filled with an eager, restless, earnest, driving energy that will make a success of whatever they undertake, and if the exposition scheme is once fairly launched it will be carried to completion."

Charles D. Fox, druggist: "Am I in favor of an exposition? Well, I should say I am, and what business man here can afford to be otherwise. Why, even granting that little money might be lost, still the returns that will be reaped from this will repay a thousand fold the pecuniary loss, if there should be any, which is not at all probable. Let us have an exposition by all means and show the outside world just what we have here in Southwest Virginia."

VIRGINIA'S MINERAL RESOURCES.

The Southwest's Immense Developments in Coal and Iron

The Richmond correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes as follows to his paper: "Disturbing and interesting consideration says the South is at this moment the most rapidly developing portion of the country, and some assert that the Southwest is the most rapidly developing portion of the South. It is declared that the geological and mineralogical conditions there are about as favorable for the production of pig iron as they are in Alabama. Southwest Virginia, though, seems by no means dependent upon or entirely occupied with her iron interests.

In few sections of the country can such a variety of minerals be worked as in the Southwest. This large business has grown since 1882, and the Norfolk and Western railroad increased from 48,311 tons in 1882 to 2,465,757 tons in 1889. This large increase is mainly due to the well-directed efforts of certain Pennsylvania Capitalists. Here, laid off is that of the West End. This property is so well known to every Roanoke man that it is unnecessary to give a description of it. Recently, however, many new streets have been laid off and men are constantly at work grading. Water pipes are being laid all over that section and the gas mains are also being extended.
